NEW BEGINNINGS

Thank you to all who joined us on February 10th for our annual fall open house! We look forward to serving you as you prepare for the college admission process this year.

BRIEFS TO THE DOCTORATE INITIATIVE

Program BLP’s mission is to educate and prepare students to operate in the most advantageous and most efficient manner possible. The program provides graduate training in qualitative research methods, and the expectation is for Fellows to develop research projects and achieve their professional goals within the time frame of the program.

LEADERSHIP IN DEBATE Göran Heggelund of the University of Bergen in Norway is featured in the March issue of the journal Leadership in Debate. Heggelund’s research focuses on the cognitive and emotive dimensions of reasoning in political discourse.

SUUP BACCALAUREATE PROGRAM

At LSU, the Baccalaureate level programs are designed to prepare students to operate in the most advantageous and most efficient manner possible. The program provides graduate training in qualitative research methods, and the expectation is for Fellows to develop research projects and achieve their professional goals within the time frame of the program.

THE XULA NIH BRIDGES TO THE BACCALAUREATE PROGRAM

University of Louisiana at Monroe Medical Sciences doctoral candidate Joanne M. Adams, a 2014 LSU Upward Bound graduate, is featured in the March issue of the journal Leadership in Debate. Adams’ research focuses on the cognitive and emotive dimensions of reasoning in political discourse.

GREAT OPPORTUNITIES

The mission of the Office of Strategic Initiatives is to provide leadership and coordination for the University of Louisiana at Monroe Medical Sciences doctoral candidate Joanne M. Adams, a 2014 LSU Upward Bound graduate, is featured in the March issue of the journal Leadership in Debate. Adams’ research focuses on the cognitive and emotive dimensions of reasoning in political discourse.

US-LAKK & 5-STEM PROGRAM

The University of Louisiana at Monroe Medical Sciences doctoral candidate Joanne M. Adams, a 2014 LSU Upward Bound graduate, is featured in the March issue of the journal Leadership in Debate. Adams’ research focuses on the cognitive and emotive dimensions of reasoning in political discourse.

FACULTY NOMINATIONS

In each newsletter, we spotlight an area of excellence in the field of STEM. We are always excited to showcase the research and mentoring efforts of our dedicated faculty. We welcome nominations from the STEM community. To be featured in the OSI newsletter, email a brief description of your colleague’s research and activities to: OSI@LSU.edu.

SAXER UNIVERSITY STUDENTS VISIT LSU

The Office of Strategic Initiatives is pleased to announce the following opportunities for our students to explore the LSU campus and the University of Louisiana at Monroe Medical Sciences doctoral candidate Joanne M. Adams, a 2014 LSU Upward Bound graduate, is featured in the March issue of the journal Leadership in Debate. Adams’ research focuses on the cognitive and emotive dimensions of reasoning in political discourse.

THE MENTORSHIP PROGRAM

The University of Louisiana at Monroe Medical Sciences doctoral candidate Joanne M. Adams, a 2014 LSU Upward Bound graduate, is featured in the March issue of the journal Leadership in Debate. Adams’ research focuses on the cognitive and emotive dimensions of reasoning in political discourse.